CAMP LIFE FOR BARRANCAS MEN

All Companies Stationed Here are to Engage in Maneuvers on Santa Rosa Island.

The several companies of coast artillery, stationed at Forts Barrancas, Pickens and McRae are to have a touch of camp life during the next seven days. They will leave the post this morning for Santa Rosa Island, where they will pitch their tents and for the coming week will be kept hard at work at various maneuvers.

This is the first time that actual camp practice has been performed at the local post, but orders recently received from the war department instructed that the men be given a little work in mimic war fare and Santa Rosa Island was selected as the best point to conduct the work. It is supposed that sham battles, attacks, etc., will constitute the work during the week. During yesterday and Saturday the men were busy at the post getting ready for the move which is to be made today.

Colonel Howe and his staff will not cross to the island, but will direct the movements of the troops from old Fort Barrancas, where their tents will be pitched, and where they will use the new system of telephones and signals.

Ironmonger.

The word "ironmonger" has as curious an origin as any other word in the English language. It means literally an enter of iron and came to its present use in this way. There was once a law that forbade buying fish to sell again, and the fish hawkers, who still carried on their trade in spite of this law, were facetiously termed fish eaters or fish-mongers, for, to evade the law, their large purchases of fish were said to be for their own consumption. Gradually the term monger was applied to other trades, as cheesemonger, until at last it came to mean any middle man, as distinguished from a manufacturer, and so was applied to the dealer in hardware.—London Graphic.

RHEUMATISM TROUBLESOME PAINS AND ACHES

While Rheumatism is usually worse in Winter because of the cold and dampness of a changing atmosphere, it is by no means a Winter disease entirely. Persons in whose blood the uric acid, which produces the disease, has collected, feel its troublesome pains and aches all the year round. The cause of Rheumatism is a sour, acid condition of the blood, brought about by the accumulation in the system of refuse matter, which the natural avenues of bodily waste have failed to carry off. This refuse matter coming in contact with the different acids of the body, forms uric acid which is absorbed by the blood and distributed to all parts of the body, and Rheumatism gets possession of the system. Rheumatic persons are almost constant sufferers; the nagging pains in joints and muscles, are ever present under the most favorable climatic conditions, while exposure to dampness or an attack of indigestion will often bring on the severer symptoms even in warm, pleasant weather. Liniments, plasters, lotions, etc., relieve the pain and give the sufferer temporary comfort, but are in no sense curative; because Rheumatism is not a disease that can be rubbed away or drawn out with a plaster. S. S. S. is the best treatment for Rheumatism; it goes down into the blood and attacks the disease at its head, and by neutralizing the acid and driving it out, and building up the thin, sour blood, cures Rheumatism permanently. Being made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, S. S. S. will not injure the system in the least. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice without charge.

WANT BRIDGE OVER ESCAMBIA RIVER

RESIDENTS OF SANTA ROSA ANXIOUS TO BE ABLE TO REACH PENSACOLA MARKETS.

For some time past the residents of Santa Rosa county, especially those residing in the northern part of the county, have been anxious that a bridge be constructed at some point near McDavid which would allow them to reach the Pensacola market with their products, but for some reason the Santa Rosa Commissioners do not seem to favor the project. The Escambia County Commissioners have, for some time, been ready to do their part towards the construction of a bridge connecting the two counties, but the matter has never been brought up in such shape that action could be taken. A bridge over the Escambia river is badly needed and residents on both sides of the river still hope that some agreement for its construction may be reached in the near future.

About Rheumatism.

There are few diseases that inflict more torture than rheumatism and there is probably no disease for which such a varied and useless lot of remedies have been suggested. To say that it can be cured is, therefore, a bold statement to make, but Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which enjoys an extensive sale, has met with great success in the treatment of this disease. One application of Pain Balm will relieve the pain, and hundreds of sufferers have testified to permanent cures by its use. Why suffer when Pain Balm affords such quick relief and costs but a trifle? For sale by all druggists.

London.

London was a place of importance even under the Romans and was famed for its great commerce as early as the first century of the Christian era. From the Romans it received municipal institutions which have endured in their main features to the present day. In Saxon times it was, in reality, a small independent state.

BIG CROWDS AT CHRISTMAS TRIAL

Hundreds Unable to Get Into Hall Where Trial is Being Held at Marianna.

Special to The Journal.

Marianna, April 2.—The preliminary trial of William Christmas, Walter Holland and Jasper and John Justice, who are charged with the murder of Judge Christmas and his entire family near Campbellton was called here today before Judge J. C. McKinnon.

Great interest is being shown in the trial, and it is estimated that over two thousand persons are here from the surrounding territory. The trial is being held in the Davis hall, which was packed throughout the day to its utmost, and hundreds were not able to get within ten feet of the building.

State Solicitor J. Walter Kehoe, C. L. Wilson and Ellis Davis are conducting the prosecution, with W. B. Farley and Price & Watson, of Marianna, and Espy & Farmer, of Dothan, Ala., represent the defendants.

Some sixty witnesses for the state were sworn today, but some of them will not be used at this trial. Several witnesses for the state were examined, and some strong evidence adduced in reference to the clothing worn by Christmas. Testimony connecting Holland and John Justice with the crime was also brought out during the day.

It is believed that the negro Jasper Justice will be discharged, as there is little or no evidence connecting him with the case. Most of those who have heard the testimony are of the opinion that the other three, Christmas, Holland and the negro John Justice, will be held to the circuit court. The trial will probably consume three days.

AN EMPEROR'S TASTE.

It Was the Origin of a Common Saying in Austria.

An anecdote which was current of Ferdinand I. of Austria at one time greatly delighted his subjects and gave rise to a common saying. One summer day he was hunting in the Syrian mountains and was overtaken by a violent thunderstorm. He sought refuge in a farmhouse whose occupants were just then at dinner, and his family was caught by some smoking dumplings made of coarse flour. He tasted them, liked them and asked for more, and when he got to Vienna, to the horror of the royal cooks, he ordered the same dumplings to be served up daily. The courtiers were scandalized that such a coarse dish should figure on the menu, and even his physicians remonstrated against the use of such food.

The emperor had always been the most pliant of men, but he now showed that he had a will of his own and persisted in gratifying his new fancy. Finally the physicians pretended that it was dangerous to his health to be living on dumplings and insisted on his giving them up. The bitherto docile sovereign stamped his foot and declared that he would never sign another official document if his diet were denied him.

"Emperor I am," he shouted, "and dumplings I will have!"

To prevent a stoppage of the government machinery opposition was withdrawn, and his majesty clung tenaciously to his dumplings. Then the imperial phrase became proverbial, and thereafter when any one insisted on gratifying a silly whim some one was sure to say: "Emperor I am, and dumplings I will have!"

PENSACOLA HAD A MODERATE WINTER

Thermometer Only Reached the Freezing Point Six Times—March Coldest in 14 Years.

During the past winter the thermometer in Pensacola only reached the freezing point six times, according to the official records of the United States Weather Bureau, the dates of such occurrence being December 5, 31 degrees; 11, 31 degrees and 25, 30 degrees; January 9, 30 degrees; 23, 31 degrees and 24, 29 degrees.

March was the coldest month according to the mean average temperature, in the past fourteen years, the mean for the month being 37 degrees. The coldest March in the past 27 years, according to the records of the bureau, was in 1885 when the mean temperature was 55 degrees. The month of March 1906 was slightly over three degrees below normal. Only four years in the past 27 years has the mean been below 58, those years being 1881, 57 degrees; 1885, 59 degrees; 1892, 57 degrees and 1906, 57 degrees.

During the month of March 1905 the wind attained a velocity of over 30 miles an hour on five occasions, the dates being: March 2, 46 miles from the southeast; March 3, 34 miles from the west; March 14, 30 miles from the southeast; March 19, 45 miles from the southwest, and March 29, 50 miles from the southwest. At about 1:45 a. m. March 3, the wind, for one minute, reached a velocity of 55 miles per hour, being accompanied by a severe hail storm.

Seven thunderstorms were recorded during the month of March. Light frost formed three times and heavy frost once.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Best and Most Popular.

"Mothers buy it for croupy children, railroad men buy it for severe coughs and elderly people buy it for a gripe," says Moore Bros., Eldon, Iowa. "We sell more of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than any other kind. It seems to have taken the lead over several other good brands." There is no question but that this medicine is the best that can be procured for coughs and colds, whether it be a child or an adult that is afflicted. It always cures and cures quickly. Dust on the Ocean.

"To talk of a 'dusty' ocean highway sounds absurd, but the expression is perfectly accurate," states a writer. "Every one who is familiar with ships knows that, no matter how carefully the decks may be washed in the morning, a great quantity of dust will collect by nightfall. You say, 'But the modern steamship, burning hundreds of tons of coal a day, easily accounts for such a deposit.' True, but the records of sailing vessels show that the latter collect more dust than a steamer. On a recent voyage of a sailing vessel—a journey which lasted ninety-seven days—twenty-four barrels of dust were swept from the decks! The captain was a man of scientific tastes and made careful observations, but could not solve the mystery. Some, no doubt, comes from the wear and tear on the sails and rigging, but that accounts for only a small portion. To add to the mystery, bits of cork, wood and vegetable fiber are frequently found in this sea dust. Where does it come from?"—Korea News.

HUNGRY MILAN.

The City Always Noted For Gorgeous and Heavy Banquets.

"From early times Milan has enjoyed a reputation for the gorgeousness and heaviness of its banquets," writes Rapinet Mackenzie. "Goldoni attributed to the Milanese an inordinate love of the good things of the table in the following words, which have been handed down to us: 'They (the Milanese) can neither take a walk, a drive or amuse themselves in any way without conversing on the all engrossing theme of eating. At the play, in the heart of their families, even at the spiritual conference, they cannot resist indulging in their favorite topic.' Even in modern times Milan retains her old reputation. At Christmas time one can see that she eats well. A walk through her streets will reveal shops laden with all good things necessary for the festive season. The beef is prime—none better in all Italy—the turkeys and chickens fattened to a nicety and the vegetables like one's own garden. Perhaps there is a touch of the barbaric in this display. It is true that in that thriving city of northern Italy they work well and long, giving the life to those who prize of Latin laziness, but it is truer still that they eat much. A glance back at earlier days reveals the fact that Banquet, in the sixteenth century, draws a comparison between the English and the Lombards, likening them to wolves, not on account of their roughness of manner, for they were ever cordial and hospitable, but because of their rapacity in eating and the number and length of their repasts. In fact, a family now could live for three days on the ample supply which was then deemed necessary for one person. Until Milan felt the influence of France the Milanese cooking was of a primeval nature. Their banquets were prodigious in length and quality, but lacking in delicacy.

"With the passing of time the fame of these good people increased. The markets of Milan became world famous. The Verziere was a market for produce of all kinds. There were to be found meat and vegetables in and out of season. Its fame spread throughout the plains of Lombardy, and all neighboring cities knew of its glory. There was at this time in Milan a certain nobleman named Cane della Scala—a man presumably of a joking turn of mind—who was the guest of John Galeazzo Visconti. Early one morning he ordered his servants to buy up the choicest of everything in the market, hoping thereby to make his host cut a bad figure. Galeazzo Visconti, hearing of his guest's practical joke, sent word to the head of the Verziere market recommending him to look well to its reputation.

"The latter obeyed orders well. Three times the servants of the Veronese nobleman stripped the market place of its choicest stock, when, lo, it was replenished after every assault. What was more wonderful still, that same day a banquet more lavish than usual was given by Visconti in honor of his guest, much to the amazement of the latter. The host, with a great laugh, begged him to partake of what was left after his triple sacking of the market."—Chicago News.

A SHIP WORTH TAKING.

What the Capture of the San Philippe Meant to England.

On the 9th of June, 1887, Drake, coming back from "singeing the king of Spain's beard in Cadix," fell in with a huge vessel, which he captured. She proved to be the San Philippe, an East Indian owned by the king of Spain himself and then the largest merchantman afloat.

Her cargo, valued at more than a million sterling of modern money, was in itself the most valuable ever captured, but there was something else even more valuable than the cargo. This consisted of the ship's papers and accounts, which disclosed to the merchant adventurers of England all the methods and mysteries and the boundless possibilities of the East India trade.

Indeed, it would hardly be stretching the facts to say that the morning which saw the capture of the San Philippe saw also the dawn of our Indian empire. The immediate result was the formation of the East India company, which was not only the greatest commercial corporation the world had ever seen, but also the only one that ever commanded its own armies and fleets and wielded power little less than imperial—London Spectator.

A Pair of Coddlers.

A man with a curious fondness for skullcaps was the Abbe de St. Martin, who, in the seventeenth century, made himself ridiculous by his vagaries. He always wore nine of these articles to keep off the cold and, furthermore, nine pairs of stockings. His mode of passing the night was more remarkable still. He caused to be constructed for himself a bed of ricks, beneath which was a furnace, so arranged that he could regulate it to the degree of warmth he might require, and his bed was fitted with only a very small opening, through which the abbe used to creep when he retired to rest at night.

Even more ludicrous was the contrivance which the great French mathematician, Fourier, designed and used for the protection of his health. He incased himself in a species of box, the interior of which, by some mechanical means, was kept at the only temperature at which he felt he could live without inconvenience. While enveloped in this clumsy affair he was necessarily confined to one spot, but he provided means for the freedom of his head and hands. Even the ill of asthma and rheumatism, one would have thought, were preferable to existence under such circumstances as this, but the French mathematician, we must believe, was of a different opinion.—London Standard.

BACK TO NATURE

Natural Food for the Old Dame's Use. "For 8 months Grape-Nuts was my almost sole food," writes a New York City woman.

"I had become a complete wreck, so to speak, had no appetite or relish for any kind of food, lost flesh, dreaded the simplest daily tasks and was dragging out a most wretched existence."

"The Grape-Nuts food took hold of me at once, renewing all the vigor of my nature, and my work became a pleasure to me instead of a hardship. This was 4 years ago, and this happy condition has remained, except when, at times, I have left off Grape-Nuts. Whenever I did so, Nature speedily brought me back to the health-giving diet—back to Grape-Nuts and the joy of renewed health." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.
